At Gensler's office in Seattle, Hanging Panels in the Capsule pattern provide soft, flexible division of space. Hung on a four-channel Hanging Panel Track System mounted in a drywall slot to provide a minimal aesthetic, sliding panels flank an informal meeting area and provide sound and visual separation while maintaining an open feeling. Nearby at the open workspace, panels are fixed with a surface-mounted, single-channel Hanging Panel Track System to separate desking from adjacent collaborative worktables. As an unexpected benefit, the panels provide a soft but sturdy vertical surface for impromptu clipping of drawings and inspirations.
