At the Toronto office of IBI Group, the global architecture, planning, engineering, and technology firm, Capsule Hanging Panels provide flexible space separation in the firm's own workspace and café. Panels with subdued natural colors are installed in the work areas while saturated orange panels make an impact within the communal café space. The capsule pattern provides regularity and repetition with a single repeated cutout that allows increased light and filtered views through. Standard size panels intermingle with custom sizes providing IBI exactly what they need, where they need it.
